

Sam Blossom is a Partner in the Mergers and Acquisitions Group in PwC's Houston office. Sam has a broad range of experience in providing tax consulting advice to public and private companies, including transaction structuring considerations and due diligence investigations. He has specialized in M&A for 20 years, including time spent on the US desk in London focusing on US tax structuring for European headquartered multinational companies. Sam has participated in numerous M&A transactions (US domestic as well as cross-border), acquisitions, dispositions, spin-offs (including PLR submissions), tax-free reorganizations and corporate restructurings, strategies for preservation and utilization of net operating losses and has experience in across industries including traditional and renewable energy, infrastructure, healthcare and consumer products. Sam joined the firm in 2003, after receiving an MBA with a concentration in Tax Accounting and BS in Business from Indiana University.